PLEA BY F. D. R. FAILS TO SPEED VOTE ON DRAFT

President's Support Gives Conscription Strength,
Backers Declare

REPUBLICANS TO AID Pittman's Stand Puzzles Many Of Administration Supporters

WASHINGTON, August 24 — President Roosevelt's appeal for quick passage of the bill providing for compulsory military conscription for 12,000,000 men in the nation failed today to speed Senate debate on the measure.

However, administration leaders said that Mr. Roosevelt's support assured ultimate passage, and blocked a move to delay effective date of conscription until January 1.

The President had warned that postponement of the date of conscription would delay national defense plans a year. Senate Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky said that the President's statement will throw enough votes to administration forces to defeat the attempt to postpone the "draft" until January.

Barkley also pointed out to "doubtfuls" an announcement by Assistant Senate Republican Leader Austin that 10 Republicans already have "gone on record" for support of the administration's draft bill.

Although optimistic over the final outcome of legislation making 12,000,000 men between the ages of 21 and 31 liable to the draft, Barkley was equally pessimistic over chances of forcing the acrimonious debate to a close and obtaining a final vote.

Question of Vote Date

"The President's statement gives us the support we need to defeat attempts to postpone the draft, but there is some question as to when the senate will agree to a final vote on the legislation," Barkley said.

Barkley previously predicted the conscription bill would be passed and on the way to the house yesterday, but his plans were blocked by a strong bipartisan group opposed to the legislation.

While the majority leader has kept the senate meeting an hour earlier than usual for a week, and ordered an extraordinary Saturday session, he has refrained from formal requests for a debate limitation.

Sen. Wheeler (D) Mont., leader of the opposition, served notice on Barkley he will object to any attempt to curb the debate before the middle of next week as he again denied charges that a filibuster is under way.

There were indications that regardless of the outcome over future attempts to limit debate the amendments piling up will keep

GOOD WEATHER PREVAILS WITH FAIR'S OPENING

COLUMBUS, August 24 — "Fair weather" prevailed today as the 90th annual Ohio State Fair opened at the fairgrounds in Columbus. More than 25,000 were expected to visit the livestock pavilions, exhibit buildings and carnival side shows today with an anticipated 250,000 expected to jam through the turnstiles before the exposition closes next Saturday night.

Most of today's activities were scheduled for the Junior Fair Buildings where judging begins immediately. But sharing the opening day spotlight with the boys and girls will be Ohio Coal Miners—for this is Ohio Coal and Natural Resources Day.

Special events sponsored by the Ohio Coal Foundation were to include a parade, track-laying contests, spike-driving matches and a contest familiar to all competitors—a coal shoveling race.

Later in the afternoon at the main grandstand, a mine safety and rescue demonstration will be presented.

Iceland Possible Starting Point for Nazi Attack

FOLLOWING the sighting of German transports off Norway, there have been reports that the Nazis might be planning to attempt the capture of Iceland for use as a base for their projected invasion of the British Isles. As shown in the above map, this would enable the Germans to direct a two-way assault on the isles.

Dover Area Shocked By Nazi Blast

Townspeople Hear Swish Of Big Missiles During Morning Attack

By International News Service
British long-range guns mounted along the channel coast carried out an ear-splitting duel with Nazi railway cannon at Calais and Boulogne today after a number of high-calibre artillery shells plummeted into the Dover area.

Three loud explosions, apparently caused by Nazi shells, shook the Dover region.

As air raid sirens warned the populace to cover, Royal Air Force planes roared aloft and anti-aircraft guns went into action to forestall new Nazi attacks on this important area.

The German shells wrecked one house at Dover, killing a woman and injuring a man. A child in the same house miraculously escaped unhurt.

The new German long-distance bombardment began at 10 a.m. when one huge shell came whistling to explode near the spot where similar missiles struck on Thursday during the first cross-channel duel.

Detective Captain O. L. Kincaid declared that the filing of charges will depend on a mental examination which is to be conducted as soon as Mrs. Weyrauch is able.

She was found in an apparently dazed condition in a bathtub, the husband, a drugstore employee, said there was a note on a table from his wife declaring:

"They'll find me in the water at Island Park. I couldn't die and leave the children. At least they'll never suffer. You have been so good to me."

President Roosevelt faced the prospect of filling still another vacancy in his cabinet today as his personal friend and political intimate, Harry Hopkins, prepared to resign as secretary of commerce.

It was reported in official circles that Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones was a likely prospect for the commerce post.

Another name equally mentioned was that of former Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson, who left the New Deal set-up several weeks ago in somewhat of a huff, but who emerged from the President's office more recently and beamingly announced that, to his great pleasure and surprise, he had been offered a very attractive position.

Still a third man mentioned was Frank C. Walker, one of the original Roosevelt men, former Democratic national treasurer and ex-director of the national emergency commission.

Feller To Take Hill In Effort To Halt Yanks

Vitt Confident That His Cleveland Boys Can Remain On Top Race In American; Reds Fail, But Lose Little Ground

By Ed Kiely

NEW YORK, August 24—Manager Oscar Vitt had a feeling deep down in his heart today that his Cleveland Indians—the same tribe that sought to burn him at the stake earlier in the season—would unloosen the New York Yankees' vice-like grip on the American League pennant.

"The only thing the team wanted to do this year," the gray-thatched manager declared determinedly, "was to finish ahead of the Yanks. For we knew that if we could do that the pennant was ours. I have a feeling deep down in my heart that we will bring the pennant to Cleveland this season for the first time in 20 years."

Although the world's champions have beaten the Indians two straight times, Vitt, on whom the players threatened to strike at the outset of the campaign because of his "jittery" management, said the New Yorkers were too far behind to be considered dangerous.

"Bob Feller will start for us today," Vitt continued, "and I also feel deep down in my heart he will put an end to the Yanks' winning ways."

According to Vitt the standings of the first division clubs in the junior circuit at the final gun will be as follows:

Cleveland
New York
Detroit
Boston

Steve Sundra Tough

Meanwhile, the Bronx Bombers won their fifth straight contest by beating Vitt's cry babies, 5 to 3, behind the six-hit pitching of Steve Sundra. Before the game Joe DiMaggio, who hit his 27th homer yesterday, was awarded a watch, emblematic of his selection by the Baseball Writers Association as the American League's most valuable player in 1939. The Yanks now are seven games behind the leaders.

The Detroit Tigers, who were rained out in Boston, picked up one-half game on the leaders and now are only four games behind.

A three-run fifth inning rally gave the Philadelphia Athletics a 6 to 4 victory over the St. Louis Browns and the Washington Senators traveled 13 innings to earn a 3 to 2 decision over the Chicago White Sox.

Cardinals Move Up

The late-starting St. Louis Cardinals continued to burn up the National League by lacing the Philadelphia Phillies, 5 to 2, for their eighth straight victory. With the New York Giants losing a slugfest to the Pittsburgh Pirates, 13 to 10, the Cardinals took undisputed possession of third place.

Manager Casey Stengel and his Boston Bees continued to put the "whammie" on the leading Cincinnati Reds. The Bees stung Paul Derringer for his fifth straight loss when they plastered the Rhine Islanders, 7 to 2.

The Brooklyn Dodgers, however, again passed up a golden opportunity to gain in the race. The fading Flatbushers lost a tough 11 inning verdict to the Chicago Cubs, 5 to 4, when Outfielder Pete Reiser, filling in at shortstop, made a wild heave to the plate in the final frame, allowing Stan Hack to score with the winning run.

Aerial Aces Threaten Ram Foes

Parker Hall Vic Spadaccini

LAST season the Cleveland Rams' passing attack, sparked by Parker Hall, the sensational freshman, on the pegging end and Quarterback Vic Spadaccini on the receiving end, succeeded in keeping the defenses of their National Professional Football league opponents wide open. At it again and looking better than ever, the boys are shown at the Rams' training camp on the campus of Baldwin-Wallace College, Berea, O., as they warmed up with their spe-

About This And That In Many Sports

With only three practice sessions under their belts, Circleville High's grid squad went through a brisk 30-minute scrimmage Friday through which all participants came without a bad bruise . . . Coach Roy Black, believing that that's lads are more advanced in their first week of drill than any previous squad he has had here, told his boys to get in there and do some bumping around, and they did, willingly . . . Some good playing was shown, and some not so good . . . As a result of the scrimmage Coach Black said that most of next week would be spent in blocking drills . . . On his first eleven Friday were Jackson and Carr at the ends, Sabine and Linton at tackles, Sims and Crawford at guards, Brown at center, Geib at quarter, Moorehead and Anderson at the halves and Staley at full . . . Whether these boys will draw starting assignments in the first game September 13 depends on their work in the next two weeks . . . Several potential starters, including Jenkins, Martin and Eby, were not on the field Friday, Jenkins not yet reporting, Martin working, and Eby out with a twisted ankle . . . Jenkins and Eby are halfbacks and Martin a capable guard***

SWAIN'S ENTRY FAVERED TO COP $42,000 FEATURE

CHICAGO, August 24—From a mutual standpoint, it will be Swain, Cleveland Putnam's gray roan son of Ladysman, against the field when the ten two-year-olds go postward this afternoon for the gross value $42,000 Washington Park Futurity.

Swain's stock with the betting fraternity has taken on boom-like proportions as the result of the impressive manner in which the Putnam entry galloped to victory in the recent running of the Arling ton Stake.

Here are some scribblings for sportsmen of the district . . . Trout fishing season closes September 15 and remains closed until next April 15 . . . The Mad River in Logan County is the favorite spot in the state . . . Sixty days of duck hunting will be provided this fall . . . Ducks, geese, coot and jacksnipe may be taken from October 16 to December 14 . . . The hunting day is lengthened each day, shooting of waterfowl and coot being permitted from sunrise until 4 p. m. . . Jacksnipe may be taken from sunrise to sunset . . .

Although the bag limit on ducks remains at 10 a day and the possession limit still is two day's bag, a new rule now makes it possible to possess the legal limit for 20 days after the close of the season, instead of 10 days, as heretofore.

The bag of canvasbacks, redheads, buffleheads and ruddy ducks is limited to three a day of any one of these species . . . Regulations also provide that not more than three of this entire group may be taken in one day.

The possession limit on these birds is also double the daily bag limit.

Bag limit on coots is 25 a day, with possession limited not to exceed the daily bag limit. Closed seasons are continued on wood ducks, Ross geese and swans. Hunters may use shotguns not larger than 10 gauge. The three-shell limit on repeating guns is continued.

Use of bait or live decoys again is forbidden. All persons over 16 must have federal migratory hunting stamps when hunting migratory waterfowl. All persons including those under 15 must have

Ohio hunting license when hunting except on their own land.

Feller To Take Hill In Effort To Halt Yanks

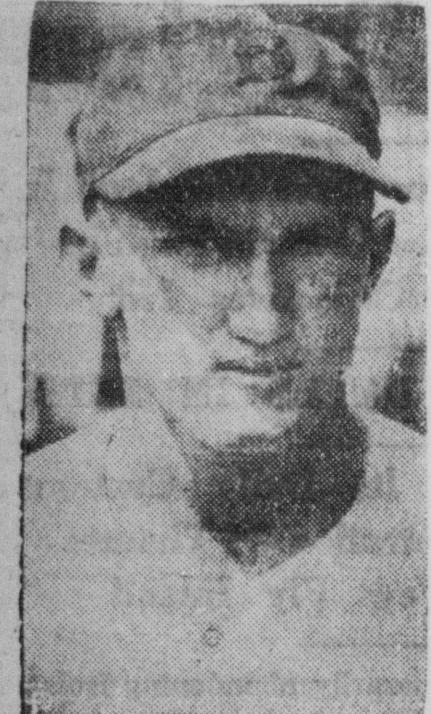

Vitt Confident That His Cleveland Boys Can Remain On Top Race In American; Reds Fail, But Lose Little Ground

By Ed Kiley

NEW YORK, August 24—Manager Oscar Vitt had a feeling deep down in his heart today that his Cleveland Indians—the same tribe that sought to burn him at the stake earlier in the season—would unloosen the New York Yankees' vice-like grip on the American League pennant.

"The only thing the team wanted to do this year," the gray-thatched manager declared determinedly, "was to finish ahead of the Yanks. For we knew that if we could do that the pennant was ours. I have a feeling deep down that the Yanks' winning ways."

Tabor Out

FORCED to undergo an emergency operation, Jim Tabor, above, third baseman of the Boston Red Sox, has been lost to his team for the remainder of the season. His place has been taken by Charley Gilbert, former St. Louis Cardinal, who was rescued from the minors the day before Tabor was stricken suddenly with appendicitis during batting practice.

Confession and Forgiveness

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Newman Campbell

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for August 25 is II Samuel 12:1-14; Psalm 51:1-17; 32:1-11, the Golden Text being James 5:16, "Confess therefore your sins one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed.")

ONE OF US knows what a weight is on the soul when we have committed a sin—small or large. We know, too, the blessed relief of confession and the joy of being forgiven.

This lesson is the story of David's sin—a great and grievous sin, indeed, which, being at last confessed, sincerely repented, and partly atoned, brought him a measure of relief.

David's sin was so great that one can hardly condone it. We can only say that in his day, kings were very powerful, and their ideas of right and wrong were not those we hold today. David was an oriental king, and as such his people could not punish him as he would be punished now for such a crime, but he was punished, nevertheless, and suffered bitterly because of what he had done.

Briefly told, David, walking one night on the flat roof of his palace, saw a very beautiful woman and fell in love with her. He immediately wanted her, but she was married. Her husband was Uriah, a faithful soldier in his army under Joab. So David sent word to Joab that he should put Uriah into the very thickest of the battle, where he would surely be killed. This Joab did, and after Uriah's death, David married his widow and they had a son.

By Alfred J. Buescher

David, King of Israel, walking one evening on the roof of his house, saw a beautiful woman, Bathsheba, wife of Uriah, a Hittite and soldier in Joab's army.

David fell in love with her and sent word to Joab, his general, to put Uriah, her husband, in the thick of the battle where he would be killed, and Joab saw to it that Uriah died as David planned.

David then married Uriah's widow, but Nathan, the prophet, knew what David had done, and accused him, saying that he would be punished and their son should die.

David confessed his wickedness to Nathan, saying: "I have sinned against the Lord," and was forgiven, but the child died.

This spirit allowed them to set up each day's program with the attitude of a scientist setting up an experiment, yet it filled them with such a spirit of consecration and devotion to an eternal Kingdom that they became spiritual leaders. On the one hand, they were ready to learn from experience and to profit by mistakes. On the other hand, they knew their message was one that must succeed.

The Wayside Fellowship Program really began at the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Rochester May 18, when Evangelistic open air services were held with the Wayside Cathedral during the Assembly sessions. Speakers included Presbyterians and Episcopal Church leaders who told of the plans for the Wayside Fellowship. Bishop Hobson was one of the speakers before the General Assembly, and also participated in the open air services. Immediately after the close of the session, the Wayside Fellowship began its evangelistic campaign in Southern Ohio, carrying on its work in the Northeastern section of the Diocese, which included the area adjacent to Martin's Ferry and the Hocking Valley.

With very few exceptions, the Wayside Fellowship visited small towns and mining camps which have no established churches. Starting on June 3rd at Connorsville, the Fellowship held services in Bradley, Dun Glen, Dearmanville, Duncanwood, Glen Robbins, Piney Fork, Willow Grove, McClainsville, and Neffs.

NEW HOME FOR DEAD

SAN FRANCISCO, — Virginia City, Nevada, is offering a haven for some of the famous citizens' remains removed from San Francisco's historic Laurel Hill Cemetery to make room for a housing project. Commissioners wrote Mayor Angelo J. Rossi of San Francisco, suggesting that the bodies of William Sharon and James B. Fair be re-interred at Virginia City. Sharon and Fair were among the "bonanza kings" of Comstock Lodge days in Nevada, and later blazed a trail of gold through California.

Nebraska was the first state to observe Arbor Day, and began the observance in April, 1872.

VIOLENCE VS. VIOLENCE

LEON TROTSKY was unable to escape his fate. He had moved from place to place in his exile, finally settling in Mexico. His residence there was heavily guarded, almost a fortress. Supposedly only persons well known to Trotsky and his guards went in and out. The accused slayer had visited Trotsky as a friend many times during the past year and was familiar to the whole household. At the end, Trotsky is reported to have said that his assailant was probably a member of the Russian secret police, the dreaded OGPU.

Leader in the Russian Revolution of 1917, Trotsky never gave up his hope of a world Communist revolution. He held various important offices in the Soviet government, but soon his ideas and those of Josef Stalin came into serious conflict. After Trotsky's exile he claimed that Stalin had betrayed the Internationale and wrote a book giving his side of their controversy and the final break.

Violence, exile and terror apparently are normal parts of such a movement and of the lives of the men who lead it. Whether or not he was responsible for Trotsky's death, Stalin may well dread a similar violent fate for himself.

CHAPLIN'S "DICTATOR"

APPARENTLY the much-discussed and long-awaited Charlie Chaplin picture, "The Dictator", will actually reach the movie screens before long. Americans are accustomed to thinking of Chaplin as the funny man of the movies. Many of them expect only to roar with laughter at his antics in the films. They wonder a little how, at this stage of German conquest, any take-off of Hitler and his fellow dictators can be laughable.

Old-timers who admired Chaplin's work for its great skill and keen satire have long known that the laughter induced by his misadventures was often mixed with tears and that a lump in the throat was as frequent an experience as a chuckle. His last picture, "Modern Times", was full of preposterous episodes at which the fan could laugh. But the implications of the overwhelming machinery with which mere human workers seemed to cope were thoroughly serious. The public can therefore look forward to "The Dictator" as an intelligent satire offering both a humorous slant on Nazidom and a strong criticism of totalitarianism in general.

Figure it out any way you like, but the fact is that most of Canada's immigrants today are Americans.

We Americans don't worry as long as we have all the money we need to buy all the gas we want.

DEFENSE TALKS WITH CANADA

WASHINGTON—Behind the talks which President Roosevelt has had with Prime Minister MacKenzie King is the worry which U. S. military strategists have had for some time regarding the vulnerability of New England to attack from Newfoundland and the Maritime Provinces of Canada.

U. S. Army experts first began emphasizing this to the President when Norway was invaded. They jointed out how, once the Germans got into Norway, it was impossible to dislodge them. The odds, they said, were always in favor of the side which got there first.

During the conversations between Roosevelt and MacKenzie King, one point discussed was the fact that Canada has only two divisions of raw recruits for her own defense. Furthermore, she has almost no anti-aircraft units.

Canadian troops already have been sent to England, to Iceland and to the West Indies, leaving the Dominion probably less well defended than the United States.

That Canadian troops were sent to Iceland is significant. For this one-time Danish possession, now claimed by Hitler but occupied by the British, is the first stepping-stone by air from Europe to Canada. Once Iceland falls under Nazi control, German airplanes can hop to Newfoundland in a few hours, then on to Canada and Maine.

The Roosevelt-MacKenzie King conversations developed the fact that the United States, relatively, is better prepared than Canada, so that the United States will assume part of her near neighbor's protection. So don't be surprised if you see American naval vessels and American troops adjacent to and on Canadian soil in the near future.

MCNARY ON POWER

Wendell Willkie made no mention of the power issue in his acceptance speech, but his running mate will do so in his acceptance in Oregon.

Senator McNary is a public power man, has supported all the New Deal's power projects. Also an astute politician, he is keenly aware that power is a major issue throughout the West and one of Roosevelt's mainstays in the region.

Had McNary been consulted, he would have advised Willkie to include a brief statement of his position on power in his Elwood talk.

McNary will discuss the matter from the viewpoint of conservation. He holds that public power is necessary in the West because of the great outlays needed for its development and because irrigation, water conservation and important agricultural interests are involved. In other sections, such as the industrial East, where much power is produced by coal and other fuels, McNary does not favor government competition with private interests.

NOTE—A middle-of-the-road isolationist, McNary will confine his speech chiefly to domestic affairs. He refused to join Senators Bob Taft and Vandenberg plus other Republican isolationists in their telegraphic pleas to Willkie not to declare for compulsory military training. Willkie disregarded their counsel but did not put

Science Has New Ally In Cancer War

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I AM ASKED to announce that a prize competition for a poster for the anti-cancer campaign is offered by the National Alliance of Art and Industry, Inc. The prizes range from $1,000.00 to $10.00. Detailed information can be obtained from the Secretary, Poster Competition, National Alliance of Art and Industry, Inc., 119 East 19th Street, New York, N. Y.

In connection with the campaign to treat cancer, I have also an announcement from the University of Pennsylvania regarding the much publicized cyclotron, as a weapon in the treatment of cancer. The medical department of the University is installing a cyclotron which will be used for cancer research.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Beam of Neutrons

By means of conditioning atoms of heavy hydrogen so that single electrons are torn from the atom and deflected in a steady stream so that they can bombard various chemicals rendering them radioactive, these can be administered to patients.

Besides that the cyclotron can be adapted to another method of treating cancer which is the direct application to the patient of beams of neutrons, produced by placing in the target chamber at the end of the projector a plate of beryllium from which the neutrons are released by the bombardment stream directly into the malignant tissue.

The cyclotron at the University of California is used for treatment purposes only two days a week, owing to the demands of various fields of physical research, and those interested in the possibilities of the cyclotron are very happy that the University of Pennsylvania equipment will be available for more extensive trials.

The University of Pennsylvania equipment will furnish energy equivalent to 200 pounds of radium—which is tremendous considering that in the world there are today less than two pounds of purified radium. Radium is worth about $10,000.00 a pound.

WHOOPING COUGH vaccination would be more worth while trying if there were not so many shots required. So writes a questioning parent. But the strength of the vaccine has been stepped up and fewer injections are now required. Two injections made on each of these treatment days used to be the rule. Now only three, instead of six, injections are required.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

C. F.—"Is there danger of cancer arising from a mole on the back of the neck? Is it more dangerous to have it removed than to leave it alone?" Is the electric needle more advisable than snipping it off? It has been a small one for about 25 years but started growing about 6 years ago?"

Answer—It is possible for cancer to arise from a mole. There is no danger to having it removed if done by a competent physician. You had better leave the method of removal to him as he would have to use his judgment about the best method after seeing the mole.

Paying off the cab, the man turned toward Gun, so that the latter got a sight of his face. It was tanned—the face of a man who had lived a lot in the open air. It was also an ugly face, with pale blue eyes set too close to the nose. It was a thick nose with wide nostrils, and the lips below it were also thick and blubbery, and partly hidden by a stiff, bristling mustache.

Gun passed over a note and a sixpence, and took a blue ticket, mechanically answering as he did so the challenge in her eyes. A gentleman with a scimitar, who might or might not have been a eunuch, opened the lattice swinging doors for him, and he passed into an inner room.

Here was the same thick-pile carpet, and attendants in eastern dress, with a flavor of the late Mr. Clarkson about them.

He was relieved of his traveling coat and grip and escorted to a counter, where a gentleman resembling a pasha inquired:

"Have you any valuable you would care to leave here, sir?" You will be provided with a locker inside, but we accept no responsibility for anything not left here and signed for!"

"What?" said Gun. "Isn't this an honest world?" He handed in his watch, cigarette case and lighter, together with four five-pound notes.

Gun glanced around the inner chamber with some amusement. There was a property sarcophagus in the center of the room, and Egyptian hieroglyphic paintings on the walls.

He was accustomed to the more orthodox Hamman Baths which he had used for years. Men are remarkably faithful to their Turkish baths, but Gun had never been a creature of rigid habit and he was always ready to try any place once.

Gun Cotton, famous agent of Scotland Yard, arrives in London and delivers a mysterious parcel to his superior, known as X, despite the many traps which have been made to take it from him. Tired and worn from his nerve-wracking assignment, he takes a taxi to Sleichtner's Egyptian Ray-Baths.

CHAPTER TWO

THE TAXI bore a cursing Gun away, through the park and the sunlight.

Reaction from the strain of the past week had set in as Gun proceeded in his cab and for the time being he could only lie back on the cushion, without enough energy to give the driver fresh directions.

But opposite the National gallery he stopped and dismissed him. He walked, rather aimlessly, up to Leicester square.

For a moment he stood, undecided which way to go, and stared around him. He was thinking:

"My Lord, how are the mighty fallen! Leicester square—for years the center of theaterland, and now not a single theater in it! What would the masters of the naughty nineties think of that?"

He stared around rather gloomily. Daly's a picture house—the Empire a picture house, the Leicester Square theater . . . His eyes paused and rested on a pseudo-oriental portico, glittering in gold and bright blue, with an Egyptian flag flying all over it, and a gorgeously uniformed gentleman with a scarlet fez on his head in attendance at the doors.

And above them the legend:

"SLEICHTNER'S EGYPTIAN RAY-BATHS"

"Confound it!" said Gun to himself. "The damned place is haunting me this morning!"

He walked half-way round the square, idly, to have a closer look at it.

Then a taxi slid to the curb and claimed the doorman's attention, and the individual who alighted from it, for no particular reason that he could assign, also claimed Gun's.

There was plenty of showmanship about the Ray-Baths of Messrs. Sleichtner. The walls of the hallway were covered with ornamental hangings, and in one corner a mummy case was propped. The young lady in the pay box, too, wore eastern costume, the lower part of her face concealed by a heavy silken veil.

Gun passed over a note and a sixpence, and took a blue ticket, mechanically answering as he did so the challenge in her eyes. A gentleman with a scimitar, who might or might not have been a eunuch, opened the lattice swinging doors for him, and he passed into an inner room.

"You'll find the elevator through that door, sir, and along the passage to the right."

So he nodded, and passed through the door indicated, which was held open for him by another attendant.

"Have you any camels to ride,

by any chance?" he asked the pasha.

The man looked at him gravely and shook his head.

"Afraid not, sir—no camels!"

"How very remiss," Gun remarked laconically, as he took his ticket and allowed himself to be bowed and salamed through another pair of folding doors.

A large room, this time, with an imitation marble floor, and a circular fountain playing in the center. From behind curtains in one corner a radio dispensed eastern music. The rest of the walls were occupied by rows of small doors—evidently dressing rooms. The atmosphere was a trifle over warm, and heavy with what were supposed to be eastern perfumes, Gun supposed.

Woman Journalist, Nemesis Of Nazis, Flees Homeland, Reaches America Safely

By Max Lekus

NEW YORK, August 24 — Although Adolf Hitler managed to capture in France many ardent anti-Nazis, he failed to get his hands on the woman he reputedly hates most.

She is Madame Genevieve Tabouis, dean of French columnists. She has been described as the Parisian combination of Dorothy Thompson and Walter Winchell.

Only a few days prior to the fall of Paris, Madame Tabouis managed to get across to England. She secured passage to the United States and has reached New York, although she has been indicted by the Petain government for "war mongering," just as former Premier Edouard Daladier, who now is awaiting trial, and other French leaders were indicted.

Madame Tabouis, commonly nicknamed "Aunt Genevieve," by Frenchmen, is a frail, gray-haired, mild-mannered little woman who was deprived by an operation of one kidney and has to live on a strict vegetable diet.

Writing a daily column in the Paris paper "L'Oeuvre," until recently, she was considered the foremost exponent of anti-Hitlerism in the European press.

Strangely enough, this "thorn in Hitler's side" enjoyed a most sedate childhood and upbringing.

She was born of a family which has given to France many a diplomat. Jules Cambon, dean of French ambassadors and former envoy to the United States and to Germany, is her uncle. She was brought up in a convent. Upon the outbreak of the World War, she volunteered as a war nurse in a military hospital, interrupting her studies in archaeology.

After the war she returned to archaeology, concentrating on ancient Egypt. By 1924 she already had published three brilliant books on that subject.

That year, however, she suddenly gave up that study to enter the newspaper field. The man generally credited with having discovered her journalistic talent is the late Aristide Briand. Impressed by her keen logic and gift of obseration, he prevailed upon her to go to Geneva and report on the League of Nations for a Paris daily.

And sons, of Niagara Falls, New York arrived Friday to spend several days with Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Durant. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hostler of Columbus were guests in the Durant home, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Reichelderfer attended the Karshner reunion held on Lancaster Fair Grounds, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Fetherolf,
Mr. and Mrs. Joe White, Mr. and Mrs. Robert White, and Mrs. Minnie White of Logan enjoyed a picnic at the White Farm on Pleasant Ridge, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Archer and daughter, Wanda, are spending this week with Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hartzell of Cincinnati.

Miss Betty Reichelderfer of Athens spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs.
and Mrs. C. W. Reichelderfer.

Mrs. Ella Alstadt and Miss Marilynn
Alstadt of Indianapolis, Ind., spent Tuesday and Wednesday with Mrs. Lillian McClelland and Mrs. Grace Pearce.

Mr. J. F. Armstrong spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Henry McCrady and Mr. and Mrs. Mark
Armstrong of Circleville.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hostler Street, and Mrs. Adrian Yates and son David, of East Main Street, have returned from a week spent with Robert Flickardt in Wildwood,
New Jersey.

The Rev. and Mrs. C. F. Bowman, North Pickaway Street, have returned from their vacation trip through the Smoky Mountains.

Miss Mary Tolbert, of Pickaway
Township, teacher at Indiana
Junior High School in Columbus, and Miss Ruth Andrews, of Leip-sic, Ohio, teacher in the Walnut Township School, have just returned from New York City where they attended the eight-week summer session of Teachers' College, Columbia University. Miss Andrews, who stopped in Circleville on the return trip for a short visit with Miss Tolbert, returned Friday to Leipzig.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Bailey and daughters, Thelma and Helen of near Athens, Mr. and Mrs. Jack White of near South Perry spent Friday evening with Mr. and Mrs.
Glen Sharp of Water Street.

Circleville gardeners have been asked to send flowers for Thursday, August 29, in accordance with the plan to have the different garden clubs in Ohio place displays in the exhibition booth on certain days.

The Association has also announced its daily demonstrations of flower arranging and of flower-show preparation which are to be given in the auditorium of the Women's Building at 11 a. m. and 3:15 p. m. each day except Friday when only the 11 o'clock session will be presented.

On Monday speakers are to be Mrs. Howard E. Hamlin, of the Upper Arlington Garden Club, chairman of the 1940 exhibit, whose subject is "Mechanical Helps in Flower Arrangement," and Mrs. Carl Lucas, of the Northern Garden Club, "Preparation of Garden Flowers for Arrangements."

Tuesday, State Fair visitors may hear Gustav Poesch, Assistant Professor of Floriculture at Ohio State University, discuss "Arranging Flowers for the Home" and Inez B. Williams, a florist, speak on "Arranging Flowers for Show."

Melvin E. Wyant, Wyan Nurseries, Mentor, Ohio, will have for his topic "How to Grow Roses for Your Show," scheduled for Wednesday morning. Wednesday afternoon, Fred C. W. Brown, Judge of the Bexley Garden Club, closes the 1940 series on Friday morning.

Displays by the individual clubs in the exhibition booth are to be unusually interesting for their originality.

Club Plans Dance

Got Spanish War Scoop

She has a number of history-making scoops to her credit. During the Spanish Civil war, she was the first to report that 2,000 Nazi technician-soldiers had gone to Spanish Morocco. This information, at first hotly denied by the co-ordinated German press, was later confirmed by the French intelligence service.

Last summer she warned the European democracies against Nazi designs to send warships to Africa and invade the free Negro republic of Liberia. The resulting stir in London and Washington caused Hitler to abandon such plans.

But these revelations irritated Der Fuehrer and on May 1, 1939, in an internationally broadcast speech, Hitler stooped to a special attack on "Aunt Genevieve," calling her the "Wisest of all women." Behind his derision, however, lay real fear, for more than once Madame Tabouis had spoiled Nazi plans.

Laurelville

Because many of the group are vacationing, the members decided to discontinue their meetings until September 15. During this time the cabinet will be formulating a program for fall, winter and spring.

Has Two Children

Despite several operations she has undergone in recent years, Madame Tabouis keeps up her work tirelessly. She subsists on a diet consisting chiefly of weak tea, bread and butter and fruit. She neither smokes nor drinks, is married and the mother of two grown children.

One of the most baffling things about her is the flood of secret information which reaches her desk. Chief source of these inside tips is her friendship with a number of European statesmen, among whom is Captain Maxim Litvinoff, Eden and Maxim Litvinoff, former Soviet foreign minister.

Today's Menu

DEVILED CRAB on the menu has a sophisticated air, but really it is quite simple to prepare and is very tasty. It is a good idea for the housewife to use some of the canned foods during the hot weather to save her strength and time, and also to give her family or friends something a little different to the foods she serves them during the cooler months. If you don't want to heat the oven, serve the deviled crabs over toast.

MANY COUNTIANS JOIN IN COMPETITION AS OHIO STATE FAIR OPENS

JUDGING TEAM, STOCK VIE FOR CASH PREMIUMS

Three Boys In Contest Set For Monday At 8:30; Others Appear

4-H BAND SCHEDULED

Numerous Scouts Take Part In Big Festival; Girls In Varied Events

Many Pickaway County folk were among the crowd which poured into the Ohio State fairgrounds as the 90th annual State Fair opened Saturday. With fair weather prevailing officials estimated nearly 25,000 persons will have visited the grounds during the day.

County youths, who have been planning for the event for weeks, took more than 70 head of livestock to the fair grounds Friday, County Agent F. K. Blair said. The county agent has reported that he believes Pickaway County's 4-H Club representation at the fair is bigger and better than ever before, and although the competition is greater than last year, he believes the county will be among the winners in a number of exhibits.

The county livestock judging team will perform at the Junior Livestock pavilion on the fair grounds Monday at 8:30 a.m. The team, selected on a competitive basis after a series of livestock judging tours, consists of Donald Duvall, Harrison Township; Roger May, Circleville Township, and Harold Hoover, Walnut Township. Ralph Swayer, Madison Township will serve as alternate. The team will judge sheep, cattle, hogs and horses in competition with more than 50 other teams in the state.

The 4-H Club girls' demonstration team from Pickaway County, will perform at 8:30 a.m. next Friday, with team members Betty Musselman, and Marian Graessle, both of Orient, using as their subject "The Wardrobe for the High School Girl."

Other Pickaway County girls participating in fair contests are Nellie Brown, of Williamsport, with a fancy sandwich display, and Wanda June Hudson of Commercial Point, chosen to represent the girls review. Marian Graessle, of Orient, will be the county representative in the competitive costume review.

The county's 4-H Club band of fifty member will present a band concert Wednesday 2:30 p.m. at the Junior Fair livestock Coliseum.

Judging at the fair began Saturday, with most of the activity in the Junior Fair buildings.

Circleville and Pickaway scouts were among the 500 from all parts of the state who are serving at the fair. Their civic service contribution is an annual "good turn."

Dover Area Shocked By Nazi Blast

(Continued from Page One) with bullets by a British Spitfire, toppled out of the sky, narrowly missed a jutting headland and plunged into the sea close to shore.

LONDON, August 24—A series of big British guns have been installed along the English coastline opposite the German-held French ports of Boulogne and Calais to reply to the Nazi "big Berthas" on the French coast, it was disclosed today.

According to the London Daily Express the British guns fire shells varying from 1,500 to 2,000 pounds in weight and having a range of 23 miles owing to the hinge-angle mountings of the guns.

The British gunners, said the Express, compiled full statistics regarding the German long-range artillery emplacements from flashes observed during the German shelling of a British convoy in the English channel Thursday afternoon.

This enabled "the most accurate shooting of our guns that evening," the paper added.

The Daily Telegraph said the British guns on Thursday night fired at intervals of about 10 minutes. Two of the British shells were reported to have hit a "target"—presumably a German emplacement—while a third struck a jetty at Calais according to the Telegraph.

"Absence makes the heart grow fonder," wrote the poet. But, then, he never received a postcard in August from a vacationing friend bearing the news "we have to use blankets every night."

Mainly About People

ONE MINUTE PULPIT
But rise, and stand upon thy feet: for I have appeared unto thee for this purpose, to make thee a minister and a witness both of these things which thou hast seen, and of those things in the which I will appear, unto thee;—The Acts 24:16.

James Jones, 5, of near Mount Sterling; Robert Huffer, 10, of near Williamsport, and Mary Ellen Toole, 9, of Williamsport, had tonsils removed Saturday in Berger Hospital.

A daughter was born Saturday in Berger Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. George Adams, 143 York Street.

Fred Gearhart, a medical patient, was removed from Berger Hospital Friday to his home, 202 South Pickaway Street.

C. F. Zaenglein, high school band instructor, asks all band members to report at 7 p.m. Monday for rehearsal.

John H. Dunlap of Williamsport will be in charge of the Kiwanis Club program Monday evening at 6:30 at the Pickaway Country Club.

The Rev. Peter Sartori, who has been conducting St. Joseph's Catholic Church rites since the illness of the Rev. Fr. J. J. Herman, has been assigned as assistant pastor of the Bellaire church.

Alonzo Marion of Celina was home Friday by the serious illness of his father, George W. Marion. The elder Mr. Marion underwent an operation this week in a Columbus hospital.

Lloyd Jonnes, Jr., returned Saturday after a 49-day bicycle trip through Youth Hostel routes in the East. He stopped at many points of interest, including Boston, Philadelphia and New York City, where he attended the World's Fair.

LONDON CLAIMS ATTACKERS FLEE CAPITAL REGION

(Continued from Page One) and fighters crossed one point on the southeast coast and immediately were engaged by anti-aircraft batteries and a heavy formation of British fighters.

Only Few Inland

As a result the German formation was broken up and several air battles ensued. Only a few individual German machines managed to penetrate inland.

A second wave of German planes, almost as strong as the first, crossed the southeast coast at another point ineffectively attempted a mass penetration of the Thames Estuary defenses.

Here again, it was stated, individual German planes apparently penetrated slightly further than the massed formation, but all were hotly engaged by British fighters and driven off.

Authorities said they believed not a single bomb had been dropped on the actual London area.

Even after the warning sounded trains, busses and trolleys in the London area remained in service and persons en route to work carried on.

Other traffic on roads, however, was halted while large numbers of London residents calmly went to air raid shelters.

Despite the fact that the city had been subjected to a heavy raid during the early morning hours of yesterday, there was virtually no excitement. In fact an almost nonchalant atmosphere prevailed in the huge city while the alarm was in force.

Hotels continued serving breakfasts to guests, some of whom were still in pajamas and dressing gowns.

Air raid precaution services were fully mobilized. Fire brigades, air raid warden in steel helmets and anti-gas uniforms and other personnel stood by, waiting for something to happen.

Crowds Not Alarmed

Some London main streets, particularly those near the railway stations, maintained an almost everyday appearance as crowds of workers ignored the alarm and continued to their places of work.

BERLIN, August 24—Germany's air force renewed its attacks on southern England with increasing strength today and numerous bombing raids were observed in Kent, according to an official Berlin announcement.

Air battles are now in progress and no details of the results have yet reached Berlin, it was stated.

At the same time German authorities said the first week of Germany's "total" blockade of England has wrought havoc with British shipping, particularly in distant waters of the Atlantic Ocean, where German submarines are said to be operating with "ten-fold intensity."

Qualified Nazi quarters estimated that German submarines since the "total" blockade began have sunk 100,000 tons of shipping. This U-boat activity is steadily increasing, it was claimed.

Furthermore, German authorities declared, British shipping casualties are increasing as a result of mine explosions, air attacks and shelling from German long-range guns installed on the French coast facing the English Channel.

One authentic source declared: "The results of the first week of the total blockade are above expectations."

QUESTION: A friend of mine has a hardy amaryllis and I am hoping for a bulb. Will you kindly tell me when is the proper time to dig the bulbs and where to replant it? Mrs. D.B.H. Eaton.

ANSWER: The hardy amaryllis, Lycoris squamigera, can be transplanted any time between now and winter; although, with all bulbs of this sort, it is best to get them in in September or October if possible. They may be planted in your flower border in full sun or may be planted beneath trees and shrubs in shade. For those who are not acquainted with this lily, the green strap-like leaves come up in the spring and die down about the same time as narcissus foliage in June. Then in early to mid-August the spikes of lavender-pink flowers appear. They are in bloom now in most parts of the state. They are perfectly hardy and particularly effective in a perennial border this time of season when few other flowers are in bloom.

QUESTION: I am enclosing several leaves from the hedge around our home. You will notice that they have turned a grayish-brown color. This trouble has appeared for several years but it seems to be more pronounced this year. I was advised by one of our landscape gardeners to have the hedge cut to the ground to help eliminate this disease. We have done this but it does not seem to help as the hedge is now possibly one foot tall and the leaves are all turning the same grayish-brown color. C. S., Cincinnati.

ANSWER: Your hedge is not infected with any disease but it has a very severe infestation of red spider. I would suggest that you dust your hedge immediately with dusting sulfur, being sure to contact the under surfaces of the leaves. Next June, you can apply sulfur again and if there is any indication of reoccurrence of the red spider repeat in July and again in August. To stimulate your hedge into better growth, I suggest that sometime during September or October you apply a 4-12-4 complete fertilizer using about one pound to each eight or ten feet of hedge. I would scatter this from the base of the shrubs for a distance of about two feet out on each side.

QUESTION: I am writing you for some information as to what might be wrong with a maple tree we have had for the last four or five years. Just after it comes into leaf each spring the leaves take on a yellow color instead of the usual green. The tree just doesn't seem to grow. We have another one close to it and it seems to have one limb the same yellow color.

We also have an old tree 100 years old that needs some repair. It has a cavity in it. What is the best to use to fill it and when is the best time to do that? R. T. Crestline.

ANSWER: The chlorotic condition of the leaves of your maple is probably due to the lack of sufficient iron in the soil. This is not supplied by the popular method of driving nails in the trunk but by the application of an iron salt such as iron sulfate. This is used at the rate of four pounds to 75 gallons of water to which has been added one-fourth of a large bag of drift to act as a spreader and the legislation before the senate for at least another week.

Clark Has Amendment

The latest barrier to a speedy end of the battle which began August 8 was an announcement by Sen. Clark (D) Mo. that he is preparing an amendment to restrict service of the draftees to continental United States and its territories, unless they volunteer to go elsewhere.

Sen. Pittman (D) Nev., chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, meanwhile, occasioned surprise from some of his colleagues when he came out for support of the substitute bill to postpone the draft until the first of the year. It was sponsored by Sen. Maloney (D) Conn.

Pittman, acting president of the senate in the absence of Vice-President Garner revealed his opposition to the administration's program in a recorded address for a Reno radio station. Pittman asserted "it might be well" to postpone the draft until January 1 to give voluntary enlistment further opportunity to meet the army's requirements.

Austin, however, countered Pittman's support of the Maloney amendment that he will oppose it, and that its "trojan horse" provision to limit the draft program to 400,000 is causing some Republicans to desert it in favor of the administration's bill.

Also reflecting Republican sentiment, Sen. Taft (R) Ohio, said he has not made up his mind on the Maloney amendment, but added "I'm inclined to be against it."

ALIMONY HEARING

Following hearing before Common Pleas Judge Meeker Terwilliger, Saturday, Bonnie Aronson was granted $35 expenses and $3 a week temporary alimony in her divorce suit against Norman Aronson, East Main Street. In her petition, Mrs. Aronson charges her husband with extreme cruelty.

Many Pickaway County folk were among the crowd which poured into the Ohio State fairgrounds as the 90th annual State Fair opened Saturday. With fair weather prevailing officials estimated nearly 25,000 persons will have visited the grounds during the day.

County youths, who have been planning for the event for weeks, took more than 70 head of livestock to the fair grounds Friday, County Agent F. K. Blair said. The county agent has reported that he believes Pickaway County's 4-H Club representation at the fair is bigger and better than ever before, and although the competition is greater than last year, he believes the county will be among the winners in a number of exhibits.

The county livestock judging team will perform at the Junior Livestock pavilion on the fair grounds Monday at 8:30 a.m. The team, selected on a competitive basis after a series of livestock judging tours, consists of Donald Duvall, Harrison Township; Roger May, Circleville Township, and Harold Hoover, Walnut Township. Ralph Swayer, Madison Township will serve as alternate. The team will judge sheep, cattle, hogs and horses in competition with more than 50 other teams in the state.

The 4-H Club girls' demonstration team from Pickaway County, will perform at 8:30 a.m. next Friday, with team members Betty Musselman, and Marian Graessle, both of Orient, using as their subject "The Wardrobe for the High School Girl."

Other Pickaway County girls participating in fair contests are Nellie Brown, of Williamsport, with a fancy sandwich display, and Wanda June Hudson of Commercial Point, chosen to represent the girls review. Marian Graessle, of Orient, will be the county representative in the competitive costume review.

The county's 4-H Club band of fifty member will present a band concert Wednesday 2:30 p.m. at the Junior Fair Livestock Coliseum.

Judging at the fair began Saturday, with most of the activity in the Junior Fair buildings. Circleville and Pickaway scouts were among the 500 from all parts of the state who are serving at the fair. Their civic service contribution is an annual "good turn."

As a result the German formation was broken up and several air battles ensued. Only a few individual German machines managed to penetrate inland.

A second wave of German planes, almost as strong as the first, crossed the southeast coast at another point ineffectively attempted a mass penetration of the Thames Estuary defenses.

Here again, it was stated, individual German planes apparently penetrated slightly further than the massed formation, but all were fully engaged by British fighters and driven off.

Authorities said they believed not a single bomb had been dropped on the actual London area.

Even after the warning sounded trains, busses and trolleys in the London area remained in service and persons en route to work carried on.

Other traffic on roads, however, was halted while large numbers of London residents calmly went to air raid shelters.

Despite the fact that the city had been subjected to a heavy raid during the early morning hours of yesterday, there was virtually no excitement. In fact an almost nonchalant atmosphere prevailed in the huge city while the alarm was in force.

Hotels continued serving breakfasts to guests, some of whom were still in pajamas and dressing gowns.

Air raid precaution services were fully mobilized. Fire brigades, air raid wardens in steel helmets and anti-gas uniforms and other personnel stood by, waiting for something to happen.

Some London main streets, particularly those near the railway stations, maintained an almost everyday appearance as crowds of workers ignored the alarm and continued to their places of work.

BERLIN, August 24—A series of big British guns have been installed along the English coastline opposite the German-held French ports of Boulogne and Calais to reply to the Nazi "big Berthas" on the French coast, it was disclosed today.

According to the London Daily Express the British guns fire shells varying from 1,500 to 2,000 pounds in weight and having a range of 23 miles owing to the hinge-angle mountings of the guns.

The British gunners, said the Express, compiled full statistics regarding the German long-range artillery emplacements from flashes observed during the German shelling of a British convoy in the English channel Thursday afternoon.

This enabled "the most accurate shooting of our guns that evening," the paper added.

The Daily Telegraph said the British guns on Thursday night fired at intervals of about 10 minutes. Two of the British shells were reported to have hit a "target"—presumably a German emplacement—while a third struck a jetty at Calais according to the Telegraph.

These plants are a problem in two ways: they choke out the growth of plants valuable for livestock consumption, and, in times of drought, the sheep and other stock sometimes eat the cactus itself and are injured by its spines.

Many thousands of acres in Texas have been cleared of prickly pear and other objectionable cacti by means of arsenic acid poison on cactus.

The State Ranch Experiment station at Sonora, Tex., has found that most satisfactory results are obtained when a solution of arsenic pentoxide, sulphuric acid and water is sprayed in a fine atomized mist on prickly pear.

Furthermore, German authorities declared, British shipping casualties are increasing as a result of mine explosions, air attacks and shelling from German long-range guns installed on the French coast facing the English Channel.
